SCS Film and Bag RoHS Statement

SCS Film and Bag RoHS (Restriction of Hazardous Substances) statements do not include measurements from analytical testing.

The RoHS Directive is applicable to electrical and electronic equipment. As such, ESD protective packaging is not covered by RoHS.

We understand the abundance of caution electrical and electronic equipment manufacturers feel to comply with such directives that has caused many to extend their burden of proof to packaging.

There are a variety of acceptable practices to determine RoHS compliance:

- Contact each component material supplier and have them provide material declarations of compliance.
- Conduct analytical testing.

SCS has chosen to pursue obtaining written material declarations from our suppliers.
